A detailed schematic diagram of a vacuum flush head with a macerator (optional). The diagram illustrates the plumbing connections and components. Key parts are numbered as follows:

- 1: Inlet pipe at the top left.
- 2: Two connection points on the vertical inlet pipe.
- 3: A vertical section of the inlet pipe.
- 4: The macerator unit, shown as a circular device with a motor housing.
- 5: A vertical section of the pipe below the macerator.
- 6: Two locations where the main waste line connects to the system, one above and one below the macerator.
- 7: A small circular component, likely a check valve, located on the pipe between the macerator and the main waste line.
- 8: The main vertical waste line.
- 9: A connection point on the main waste line.
- 10: A valve or fitting located on the main waste line.
- 11: A connection point on the main waste line.
- 12: A vacuum pump or venturi device connected to the main waste line.
- 13: A connection point on the main waste line.
- 14: A connection point at the bottom of the main waste line.
- 15: Multiple connection points throughout the system, including on the main waste line and the branch lines.
